

Especialización en Derecho Marítimo y Portuario

Presentation

Thinking about both the real needs of a graduate program and the social context in which this one is going to be offered is a real must. This is the major reason why the USB through its law faculty offers the specialization in port and maritime law as an answer to the demand of highly specialized professionals in our city and the Atlantic coast as well.

Being the Atlantic Coast now aware of its natural resources and ports, it joins other institutions in the country in the purpose of offering this Specialization.

The offering of this specialization is in agreement to the USB social projection and the great necessity of being coherent with the society it belongs to. This aims to qualify professional individuals in the field of maritime and port issues such as:

- Hiring.
- Procedures in this field.
- Business before national and international port and maritime administrative authorities.
- National and international regulations.
- Doctrine and jurisprudence.

Public

Its interdisciplinary components are suitable for lawyers, business administrators and logistics and port operators as well. It will also provide the specialization with an interactive component which will enrich all of its participants. Subject matters such as business port administration, quality processes and marine environment management among others will help learners improve their competences in this field.

This program also includes guided visits and the possibility to perform internships inside the businesses in this area that the USB Cartagena has agreements with.
